Attached is a map of Riga, on which the following military and air installations are marked:

Number on Map

1. Approximate area where the summer camp for the 43rd Latvian Guards Rifle Division is located. Source does not know the precise location.
2. MGB school.
3. Area of Lake Kisezers where seaplanes were observed landing and taking off. The aircraft observed were single-engined monoplanes on floats, wings fixed above the fuselage, and also single-engined biplanes. Observations were made only at rare intervals, and source has no further information.
4. Prohibited area, purpose unknown to source. No buildings in the area were observed from the road.
5. Prohibited area extending to the lake.
6. Huts believed to house troops who guard the bridge (No. 7 on Attachment).
7. Road and rail bridge across the Milgravis River.
8. Wooden barracks, single-story, painted gray or brown. Six or eight blocks can be seen from the road. The barracks formerly housed PWs, and now are apparently only used by Soviet troops.
9. Barracks which in appearance are similar to No. 8, but the buildings are in groups of two or three together. Exact number is unknown to source.

10. Military stores consisting of a number of sheds. In the southern part, what appeared to be guns covered with tarpaulin were observed.
11. Krusta Barracks, where the 43rd Latvian Guards Rifle Division is stationed.
12. Pernavas Barracks, where Latvian and Soviet troops are stationed.
13. Area guarded by military sentries, in which two or three fuel tanks, the approximate size of railway tank cars, are located. In the period shortly after World War II, this area contained a large number of such tanks.
14. Area surrounded by a two-meter-high wooden fence and guarded by military sentries. It contains a crane, which handles large objects, judging by the sound, believed to be metal.
15. Building on the corner of Marksa iela and Veidenbauma iela, guarded by sentries armed with automatic weapons. The sentries have black and/or blue flashes [on their epaulets ?].
16. Building of the former Latvian War Ministry on the corner of Kirova iela and Valdemara iela, believed to house a military headquarters.
17. Building on the corner of Lenina iela and Raina Bulvaris, believed to house a military headquarters.
